OHIO MAN LOOKING FOR LIGHTNING TO STRIKE HIS WAY.

OHIO IS PIVOTAL
Looking to Carry Home State of President Harding—Convention Plans.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1923, by Janesville Daily Gazette.

(This is the third of the series of news articles by David Lawrence on presidential possibilities and impossibilities. Mr. Lawrence is now en route to Europe to make a detailed survey of reconstruction problems there. At the conclusion of this series, Mr. Lawrence's daily cables from Europe will begin exclusively in the Gazette, July 17.)

Three times William Jennings Bryan ran for the presidency on the democratic ticket. Defeat in each of the first two cases was not harder to his nomination a second or a third time. James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio and the nominee of the democratic party in the 1920 election, has this precedent to look upon.

Analyzing the chances of the former Ohio governor one must take into consideration the fact that he has this precedent to look upon. On the side of Mr. Cox is the argument of one campaign and that if anybody is deserving of a second nomination for party service, it is he. Mr. Cox was nominated at San Francisco through the aid of the democratic state organization in New York, New Jersey, Illinois, Indiana (Continued On Page 2)

Hundreds of Pickets Are Under Arrest

Brooklyn, N.Y.—One hundred pickets were arrested today as they went to the picket line in the city. Among those arrested were two strike leaders, Joseph Lacouture of the Brooklyn district shoe workers' union and Mrs. Nellie McHugh.

Every court in the police station was filled with the prisoners, led by their leaders, sang "America."

There was no disorder attending the arrests.

SENTENCED TO DIE
New York, N.Y.—Mrs. Anna Buzzi Monday was sentenced to die in the electric chair during the trial of Frederick Schneider, Bronx contractor with whom she lived for eight years.

"Please discontinue my little 'Household Goods' for sale ad in the Gazette." Phoned Mrs. Doll, 621 S. Franklin St.

Inquiring as to the results obtained from Mrs. Doll's small ad, the ad girl was informed that everything had been sold and that between 50 and 60 people called, all interested in the articles for sale.

Think of it! 50 to 60 people interested in those few articles and everything sold to the first few who called.

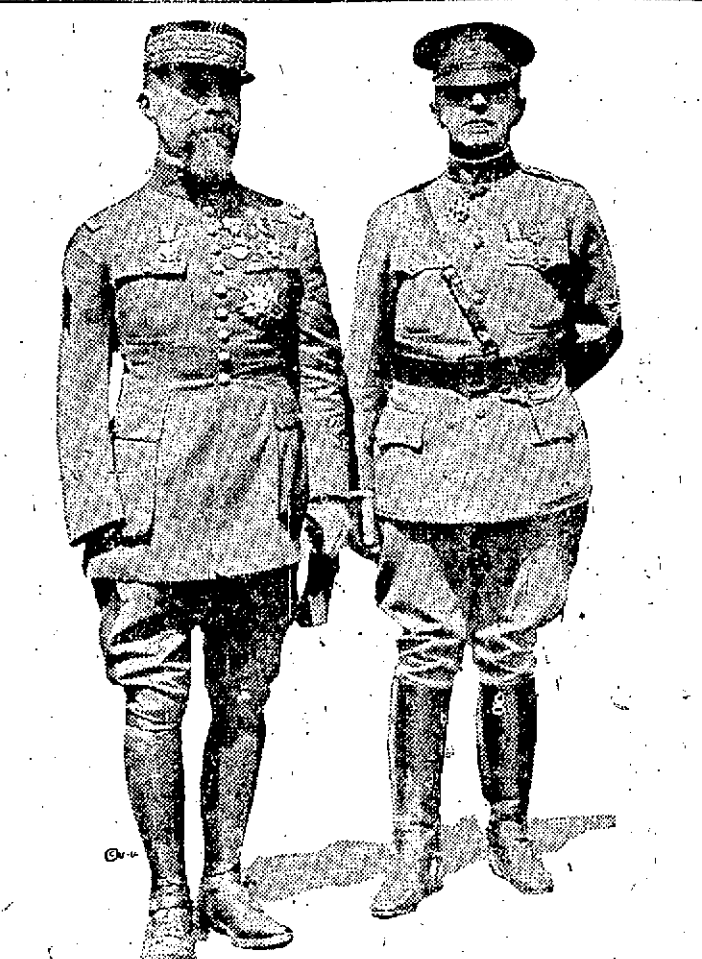

What a market there is for used furniture—nobody has any conception.

The small ad of Mrs. Doll's was inserted in two issues of the Gazette at a cost of 75c and it brought a goodly number of dollars in return. Was it worth it?

20 Year Sentence for Whipping Boss

Lake City, Fla.—Setting a precedent in Florida by imposing a sentence on Sunday, Judge M. A. McMillen sentenced Thomas W. Higginbotham, former convict whipping boss who was convicted of second degree murder by a jury here late Saturday to twenty years' imprisonment.

Following Higginbotham's conviction Saturday, his counsel immediately announced they would file a motion for a new trial. Judge McMillen said he had been advised the case would be taken to the state supreme court, and Higginbotham was released on $10,000 bond, until the higher court disposes of the case.

Attorneys for the Tabert family announced after the convention that a $100,000 suit for $100,000 to $100,000 would be filed against the Putnam lumber company as a result of Martin Tabert's death.

HARDING'S SHIP REACHES ONE PORT ON ALASKA COAST

On board the U. S. S. Henderson, with President Harding—The naval transport Henderson carrying President and Mrs. Harding steamed today after making first acquaintance with the territory yesterday at Kodiak, Alaska and Ketchikan.

The president was very favorably impressed at his first steps in Alaska by the appearance of the people, who with the exception of the natives, he declared might pass along the streets of any United States city and be taken for citizens of the place.

A break in the cable Friday and Saturday whereby the president was isolated from the world because radio messages from the Henderson were held up at Ketchikan brought forcibly to the attention of the president and cabinet officers accompanying him the necessity of giving Alaska a more complete communication system.

The president was also impressed by the effect summer weather which at Ketchikan made superfluous overcoats brought by members of the party.

PHIL HELPS OUT
Son of Bob Making Farmer-Labor Speeches for Candidate Magnus Johnson.

(By Associated Press.)
St. Paul, Minn.—An appeal by all parties to "get out the vote" was broadcast today as Minnesota warmed up to its final week of campaigning before the United States senatorial election on July 11.

The republicans, especially, sent out calls for all voters to go to the polls to elect the late Knute Nelson's successor, feeling that a large turnout will insure the election of Governor J. A. O. Preus, the party's candidate for senator.

Farmer-labor leaders and democratic chiefs also are concerned in getting out the votes for their respective candidates, Magnus Johnson and State Senator James A. Carley.

The farmer-labor party will conduct several hundred meetings in behalf of Johnson with three United States senators, congressmen and Philip LaFollette, son of U. S. Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin aiding him. The senators are Henrik Shipstead, Minnesota, Lynn J. Frazier, North Dakota, and Burton Wheeler, Montana. The congressmen are all Wisconsin, are Voligh, Schneider and Beck.

A governor, United States senator and congressman are campaigning for Governor Preus—Governor R. A. Nostrom, North Dakota; U. S. Senator Peter Norbeck, South Dakota and Representative Walter H. Newton, Minneapolis.

Senator Carley has been speaking in his own behalf throughout the state. He has not attacked his opponents but has criticized the tariff and proposed railroad consolidation.

4 ARE DITCHED IN BELOIT ROAD CRASH

Janesville Young People Have Unusual Escape from Serious Injuries.

Speeding toward Beloit on the concrete highway late Sunday afternoon, four Janesville young people miraculously escaped death when the Oldsmobile touring car in which they were riding collided with an approaching car and the occupants were thrown into the ditch.

The occupants were Charles Hathorn, Viola Hogan, Joseph Gillespie and Ariene Tilly, all of this city. The accident occurred according to reports, when Hathorn attempted to pass a car directly in front of him. As he swung into the middle of the road, to clear the car, the engine died, and before he could return the machine to the side of the road, was struck by a Beloit car coming to Janesville. The Oldsmobile was bowled over and the two couples thrown out. It is believed that the wet ditch saved them from serious injury. Miss Hogan "as the only one hurt, receiving minor bruises. Both of the cars were damaged. The name of the Beloit driver was not learned.

The accident coming at the peak of the traffic hour on the road held up traffic and scores of machines were delayed until the cars were hauled away.

CROSSING CONTINENT IN ONE DAYLIGHT TRIP

(By Associated Press.)
Mitchell Field, N. Y.—Lieut. Russell L. Maughan, U. S. A., piloting a Curtiss pursuit plane, hopped off at 3:53:30 a. m. eastern standard time today on first leg of his dawn to dusk flight across the continent.

The attempt to reach the coast by the light of a single day was begun in the flood of a dawn of high visibility which held promise of excellent flying weather on the first leg of the flight to Dayton, Ohio.

The start was made in the first lift of a purple land mist which drifted down Long Island before dawn. Maughan, flying his plane stripped to the bare necessities, climbed above the field once before heading west.

The Curtiss pursuit plane in which he is making the flight has a 430 horsepower D-12 engine, with a wing spread of 32 feet. The machine will carry 167 gallons of gasoline, 9½ gallons of oil and 2½ gallons of water. The weight of the airplane was estimated when it hopped off at 3,300 pounds.

The flight carried a letter from Secretary Weeks to President Harding. The letter will be forwarded to Alaska. He will also hear a letter from Mayor Hylan of New York to the mayor of San Francisco.

Ismet Pasha Wins Big Turk Victory

(By Associated Press.)
Lausanne—Ismet Pasha has proved himself a great diplomat, for by the near eastern peace which was arranged in principle between the allied and Turkish representatives early today, he achieved signal victories for his country.

He never relinquished his grasp on the delicate situations that often confronted the conference. He was better than the brilliant Marquis Curzon in the first stage of the negotiations and kept all the skilled diplomats guessing from the start.

He smiled always, but seldom if ever did he yield. The Ankara government must still be consulted on several points concerning allied concessions in Turkey, but everybody in Lausanne believes that peace will surely be signed within 10 days.

"Peace, peace. Tell it to the whole world," these were the words of the Turkish leader as he emerged from the conference hall. Champagne was drunk at the delegation hotels to celebrate the success of the negotiations which began last November.

Only to be interrupted by the question of concessions in Turkey, but everybody in Lausanne believes that peace will surely be signed within 10 days.

FLIGHT BULLETINS

(By Associated Press.)
St. Joseph, Mo.—Lieut. Maughan, flying from coast to coast, was forced down at St. Joseph, Mo., 10 miles northeast of St. Joseph.

Maughan broke his landing gear at Avenue City, Mo., and the remainder of the flight has been declared off, according to a message received here by the airmail service. Maughan said he would make another start from New York in a week or ten days.

Dayton, Ohio—One hour 35½ minutes behind the schedule on which he was attempting to traverse the continent, between dawn and sunset, Lieut. Russell L. Maughan arrived at McCook field here at 8:10 a. m. eastern standard time this morning. Twenty-five minutes later his Curtiss pursuit plane took the air in an attempt to make up lost time. He hopped off at 8:35 a. m. eastern standard time. Heavy fog and a hazy atmosphere which caused the aviator to lose his way, accounted for his delay. The first point he actually recognized after leaving New York, he said, was Akron, Ohio, 100 miles off his course.

The loss of his course caused him to fly approximately 700 miles between Mitchell Field and Dayton, he said, and taxed his gasoline supply. His map route had called for only 570 miles. Lieut. Maughan is keeping to his schedule of 160 miles an hour, the pilot said.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Lieut. Russell Maughan, flying across the continent, passed directly over Indianapolis at 12:42 a. m. central standard time or 1912 eastern time.

Springfield, Ill.—Lieut. Maughan passed Springfield, Ill., at 10:22 a. m. central standard time flying low. Springfield is approximately 100 miles from Indianapolis and the distance was negotiated in one hour and ten minutes. This would indicate Lieut. Maughan is keeping to his stride of 160 miles an hour.

France Has Ratified All the Treaties

(By Associated Press.)
Paris.—The chamber of deputies has unanimously approved the Washington treaties relating to the Pacific.

The chamber passed a bill approving the treaty concluded on February 12, 1923, by France, the United States, Great Britain and Japan covering their island possessions in the Pacific and the declaration adopted on the same date relating to the Pacific mandates.

It also accepted the complementary agreement made in Washington on February 12, 1922, in which application of the treaty was precisely defined as it concerns Japan.

On Saturday the chamber approved the Washington agreement on naval limitation. Both treaties now go to the senate.

In today's debate Deputy Zischmuhl, socialist-radical, said that he predicted the United States had expressed remarks "very unfortunate, not to say unfriendly to France."

FISHERMAN FINDS BALLOON BASKET WITH ONE BODY

SECOND BODY BELIEVED TO BE NULL ON SHORE OF PT. PELÉE.

EXPOSURE KILLS
Two-day Search is Rewarded with Finding of Navy Balloonists.

(By Associated Press.)
Washington.—The body found Monday off Point Pelée, Ont., is not believed by navy officers here to be that of Lieut. Null, missing balloonist. Investigation showed that when he left Indianapolis on the balloon flight, Lieut. Null wore a forest green aviator's uniform, whereas the body recovered on the Canadian shore was dressed in a blue serge suit. It was suggested also that Null's body scarcely would have been washed so far away from the balloon.

Fort Stanley, Ontario.—The body of Lieut. L. J. Roth, pilot of the ill-fated U. S. Navy balloon A-6698 was found in the basket of the balloon 14 miles southwest of here Monday forenoon.

The basket, for which a vain search had been made by airplanes, flying boats and other agencies, for three days was picked up by a fishing boat commanded by Capt. George Wilson of Port Stanley.

The basket was towed into this port by Captain Wilson and with the body was temporarily placed in a fish house in charge of the police.

Evidence that Lieut. Roth died of exposure was seen in the fact that his head and shoulders were hanging over the edge of the basket. Identification was established by a laundry mark "LJR" on his underwear. A ring on the third finger of his left hand contained a red stone.

BELIEVE THIS BODY IS THAT OF LIEUT. NULL

(By Associated Press.)
Windsor, Ont.—A body believed to be that of Lieut. T. N. Null, the second missing American balloonist, who disappeared on his flight from Indianapolis on the ill-fated balloon A-6698 was found today in Lake Erie, off Point Pelée near Leamington.

The body was discovered shortly after that of Lieut. Roth was picked up in the basket of the balloon 14 miles off Port Stanley where the big bag fell into the lake. The body apparently had been in the water about a day and a half.

The body was that of a man of five feet 7½ inches. It was dressed in a blue serge suit with army shoes.

GIRL SPY BOUND TO WALL OF CAVE

Spies—and there are always women among them—have faced the firing squad at dawn in many and many a prison courtyard. They have felt the taunt noise about their throats in hurried executions behind battle lines, and they have gone down to death, bound hand and foot, in the infinite gray wastes of the sea, says a writer in the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

But, in a lonely cave on the outskirts of Holm, Bessarabia, Magdalena Frisco, a spy's penalty without a parallel in the history of war.

Secured by chains sunk into the wall of the dim cavern in the crotchy cell, as measured from the girl's eighteenth months after her captors had left her to wait for death's release.

Magdalena was born in Petrocov, a village of the Russian empire, that it is not to be found on a map of ordinary size. Her father was a Jewish chemist.

The child blossomed into beautiful womanhood.

The village that was so small made it no attention awake to war, and thrilled and trembled beneath the Russian came and went. The Germans thundered through. Magdalena watched them both from the narrow windows of the dark shop.

"I will do something! I will help!" she vowed.

But for a time there seemed nothing that she could do.

The Russians swept back again. Members of the air force swarmed through the tiny village, brave in their uniforms, they passed through the dark shop where hung the chemist's modest sign. Magdalena saw them—saw, especially one of them.

His name was Savro, and he was very good to look upon. He was too wonderful to be a Russian!

And so, when presently Savro became aware of the beauty of Magdalena, and they walked together in the softly purple dusk, she knew that she was in love.

At first he would not listen. But "After all I am not in this war because I know or care for the cause. I am a soldier. If the Germans will pay me much, why should I not fight for them instead? It will mean money, and money will mean that you and I presently will have a home and land."

"Yes," she agreed, and her eyes shone.

Later he became a Bolshevik spy in the armies of Denikin, and she followed him, following the "White" general to free Russia from the grip of the Soviet.

Denikin went down to defeat, and Wrangel took command, and still military secrets continued to seep into the camp of the Reds.

Savro was transferred to the army, and Magdalena followed him to the Ukraine. Here at length the luck that had attended them failed. The airman was wounded in an engagement and carried to a dressing station.

Magdalena discovered incriminating papers upon him, revealing not only his own part in the treacherous work, but Magdalena's as well.

Wounded as he was, Savro was hustled to the place of condemnation and forced to face the muskets and their lethal messengers of death spoke to Savro.

But short as the time had been between the discovery of the dispatches and the shooting of Savro as a spy Magdalena made good her escape.

She came, in the course of time, to Bessarabia, where steep and rugged cliffs frowned over miles of gray water, and the forests were so far from the hands of man.

There, in the cave, she hid, and then they went away and left her to die.

All but cold. He came back for an instant, not to liberate her, not even to speak to the frantic prisoner, but to leave with her a vial of poison, which she was to take when thirst, cold and starvation proved too terrible to bear.

Compassion drew him back, Magdalena Frisco could not resist, but not before she had died a hundred deaths, each of which she described in a notebook found hidden in a crevice of the cave.

"October 23," begins the notebook in which the doomed maiden wrote the tale that had so grim an ending. Its pages are all but illegible, but it stands out like a milepost of agony. "Torture." Then an interval and one reads "Water."

Thus is the tale told.

The Supreme Court as a Saviour of the Republic.

An American leader of the bar, speaking in London to lawyers of Great Britain, told them that, "it is certain that without the supreme court the American Republic would have perished long since." It is rather startling at first but when one begins to look at the question of existence of such a republic as ours, the truth of the allegation is emphasized. This republic is made up of states, each with its own constitution, its own statute laws and all having the same general written federal constitution. Each state is now and has been more so, jealous of the other, of encroachments of one state on another and of federal encroachment on the several or single states. All these must be avoided if we are to have peace and comity inside the republic. There must therefore be a balance of power and that balance is maintained by the written constitution and the interpretation of that constitution was left to the supreme court. The nullification of the constitution could have been, and can yet be, brought about with the constant approval by congress of laws which are in contravention of the constitution and trespassing upon rights of states in their inter-relations and the relation to the federal government was well. Here, then, is the function of the supreme court—to analyze those laws, and adjudicate the differences and settle the questions of constitutional rights in statutes and of states. To attack the supreme court is to attack the republic itself. The few who have desire to undermine the republic start at the right place when attacking the court because it is the very center and heart of the American republic—the great balance wheel which has kept the republic intact and saved it from disintegration.

When Mr. Beck said to the London lawyers, that the supreme court was the salvation of the American republic he was quite to the point. Somewhere there must be a supreme body in whose keeping lies the final analysis of the rights under the written constitution of this union of states. That there should not be unanimous acceptance of the decisions of the court as correct, is not to be misunderstood. Two sides are in every question and one only can win. It is natural that the loser shall object to a decision against him or his group. In the end however we accept as final that decision and have been able to go forward with the assurance that the constitution is still the basic law and not some statute hastily passed.

Republics have always been endangered by demagogues. They appear in all republics. The past is filled with the machinations of these enemies of government under the plea and guise of a greater freedom for the people. Republics have been endangered or fallen from the intrigues of clamorous demagogues. We made the demagogue less dangerous by having the written constitution. We have saved the people from the demagogue and his artful destruction by having a non-political body stand between danger and the republic itself. When we break down that protection we shall fall in its ideals and arrive at chaos.

More Local History for Library.

There has been a renewal of interest in local history since the pageant presentation on the Fourth of July. Which also brings to attention that the public library needs additional books and literature on this subject—not only concerning Janesville and Rock county but of all the other counties in the neighborhood. Here is opportunity for some one make the additions. Old people are dying and the possibilities of contributions they might make to the literature of the counties are rapidly lessening. Some interesting things have come from the recent events here in the way of information. For instance it has emphasized the fact that Lincoln traveled on horseback up the Rock river valley as a private soldier and walked back to his home when his horse was stolen. Then too, we have very little information in any of the books about the early churches. There must be some letters or diaries in existence which will add to the fund of information on that point. That the Rev. Jesse H. Head was the first itinerant protestant minister to come this way seems settled. That Fr. Morley was the first priest of the Catholic faith in Janesville and Rock county is also a matter of record. But the early missions of the churches are only slightly covered. In the story of Milwaukee the name of the Rev. Fr. Morley looms rather large and he followed his missionary work by becoming one of the leading priests and active citizens of our largest city.

It was a great task these three missionaries of the Catholic church had in the territorial days traveling about and seeking people of that faith here and there. So with the men who wandered here and there with saddle bags and camping outfit in other faiths and for other sects. It is a subject that some one should write upon and a volume on the early church of Southern—perhaps of all the churches of Wisconsin—would be timely and interesting and a distinctly worthwhile

THE PERIODICAL CICADA

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington.—Introducing Mr. Septendecim Cicada, and the little fellow over there who is his brother, Tredecim Cicada. They are with us again this summer for a brief visit. It has been a long time since we have seen them, and heard their merry music, for they don't come often, and they don't stay long. It will be a long time before we see them again!

Septendecim is popularly but mistakenly known as the 17-year locust and Tredecim as the 13-year locust. The 17 and 13 are all right, but locust is all wrong. Locust is a name that belongs properly and should be applied only to grasshoppers, popular opinion to the contrary notwithstanding.

This year one of the biggest broods of the 17-year cicada is making its appearance over a goodly portion of the United States, while one of the minor, the 13-year broods, is visiting two states.

Reports to the department of agriculture show that the latter has kept its engagement in Louisiana and Mississippi, while the older brother has been heard from in Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana. Before the summer is over, however, the 17-year visitor will be in evidence also in the District of Columbia, Georgia, Illinois, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina and Virginia, for one thing known definitely about him is that he comes regularly and to the same places. That is why he and his brothers are called periodical cicadas.

C. L. Marlatt, entomologist of the department of agriculture, who probably has devoted more time to the study of the periodical cicada than any other scientist, says of it in a monograph published by the government that it is, in the curious features of its life history, undoubtedly the most anomalous and interesting of all the insects peculiar to the American continent.

It is especially remarkable in its adolescent period, as he sounds and as his numbers would indicate, from other insects being its long subterranean life of 13 or 17 years, during all of which time its existence is unsuspected and undisturbed by any superficial sign, and the perfect regularity with which at the end of these periods every generation, though numbering millions of individuals, attains maturity at almost the same moment.

To the naturalist, familiar in a general way with the peculiar habits of this cicada, its regular periodic recurrence always arouses the keenest interest on account of the anomalous life problems presented.

To those unfamiliar with its habits, these sudden recurrences not only startle but often excite the gravest fears for the safety of trees and shrubs or even of annual plants.

However, the government expert assures us that the cicada is not as dangerous or as devastating as he sounds and as his numbers would indicate, and in proportion to the fears he inspires, really does little damage. Moreover, he is not so numerous as he once was, thanks to the devouring sparrows and other birds, and due in part to the thinning out of forests and wooded areas in the sections of the country where he is found.

His life is as fascinating as a colorful romance, and it is difficult to determine at what point of it to begin telling about it. Perhaps the layman will get it best if we begin when the air is full of the insects, and the male is singing his song of courtship. This continues for four or five weeks, the female busy herself with the plucking of her eggs in incisions or borings which she makes in small limbs and twigs of trees and shrubs.

At the close of its short adult existence, if it has escaped its natural enemies, the cicada falls to the ground to be dismembered and scattered about, carpeting the ground with its wings and the fragments of its body. A little later the eggs are hatched and the young ant-like larvae escape from the wounded limb or twig, fall lightly to the ground and quickly burrow out of sight, forming for themselves little subterranean chambers or cells over some rootlet, from six inches to two feet under the surface.

There they remain through winter and summer, buried from light, air and sun but protected in a manner from cold and frost, for the 17 or 13 years of their hypogean existence. Then some fine morning in spring or summer old Mother Nature sets off an alarm clock and they all come up to take the air! And when they come, they come in swarms. As many as 84 of them have bored their way up through one square foot of ground and 30,000 to 40,000 of them will emerge within the area surrounding one good-sized tree. Shortly after they are out of the ground the mating and singing begins, and the long cycle of 13 or 17 years is begun again.

The cicada may be said to have a Mason and Dixon's line all its own, for it has been established that the 13-year tribe inhabits the south and the 17-year family the north. The general trend of the line of division is about 34th or 35th-degree north latitude, although there is an overlapping at some places.

It is also to be understood that these strange visitors do not come all at one time or in one year. That is to say, it is not the case that the periodical cicadas will visit the United States this year and not be seen again for 13 or 17 years. They are divided into some 30 broods, and one brood makes its appearance one year and another the next, but the interval between the visits of each brood is either 13 or 17 years. Each brood has fairly well defined territory within which it appears.

This year the seventeen-year cicada that is with us is of what is known as the 14th brood, and its area of operations covers the states enumerated. The thirteen-year cicada now in evidence is of the 22nd brood, but it is confined to Louisiana and Mississippi.

The 14th brood of the 17-year tribe is the first of which record was made in this country, its first appearance, so far as we may know definitely, having been in 1634. Of that first recorded visitation there is an interesting if not entirely accurate record in the Philosophical Transactions of the Royal Society of London, published January 8, 1668.

Private collections or out of print volumes by those who have them should find their way to the public library that we may have a really valuable collection on local history.

Senator Gary says he has NO IDEA of resigning. For that matter no one else unless it was found that he would be obliged to under the law.

JUST FOLKS

LEARNING.
Take our President today—
Once, and not so far away.
Moral: ever spoke or heard,
Couldn't add up two and two.
Didn't know where cotton grew;
Had to learn all that some way,
And he's President today.

But you, if we knew the truth,
He made blunders in his youth,
And in school our President
Wasn't always excellent;
But he had his little too,
Just like me and just like you,
Wondered, too, at every turn,
Why there was so much to learn.

There was nothing when he came
Proving he was born for fame,
Nothing more of skill or joy
Than God gives each normal boy.
He possessed, you have as much
As was his to grasp and clutch.
By his conquests he has won,
All the knowledge he acquired.

You begin where he began,
You're a boy and he's a man,
But with all that he can do
He was once a boy like you.
And for all that makes him great
He has had to work and wait,
Had to learn it day by day—
You can learn the self-same way.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON

A MIRACLE.

The court record gravely informs us
A husband has made a splendid
His wife "has grown colder and colder."
And happy he claims that he isn't.
Some records of courts are surprising.
This lady will doubtless be married.
But how she grew cold in weather like this
Is something I can't understand.

Sir Arthur Keith, noted scientist, recently returned from Africa, where he has been studying the ape family, says the brains of human beings are used at only half capacity. "A lot of us use only half of our brains as we use," he says, and, looking about us casually, we are led to believe that Sir Arthur is more than half right.

Do not despair on account of the heat. Remember the scientists tell us relief is in sight. The glaciers will be upon us and will cover this entire country in two million years.

Who's Who Today

RUSSELL CORNELL LEFFINGWELL.

A task that will require unusual financial ability and will demand many years with increasing responsibility to consummate is to be turned over to Russell Cornell Leffingwell by J. B. Morgan of the U. S. treasury, former assistant secretary of the U. S. treasury, and a well known New York lawyer, has just been named as a partner in the Morgan firm and it is considered probable that he will be given charge of the British payments on the war debt.

Leffingwell is a member of the New York firm of Cravath, Henderson, Leffingwell and De Groot. He resigned from the treasury in April, 1920, having been directly in charge of the Liberty Loan collection during the war and having served under three secretaries. President Wilson received the resignation with a public expression of regret and appreciation.

Leffingwell was born in New York in 1873. He was graduated from Yale in 1895 and from Columbia Law school in 1902. Entering what was then the law firm of Cravath & Henderson immediately after graduation, he became a partner in 1907. In 1917 Leffingwell went to Washington and organized the vast machinery by means of which the treasury department was able to raise billions of dollars.

LOOKING BACKWARD.

FORTY YEARS AGO

July 9, 1883.—Bower City band gave a band concert and fireworks exhibition at the corn exchange Saturday night. The concert was well worth the money, but the fireworks and balloons were rather disappointing. It started a band fund.—Board of education met and reappointed Prof. R. W. Burton superintendent at a salary of $2,500. He started in 1875.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

July 9, 1893.—For two forms of violent death Rock county is becoming famous.—murder and drowning. For the latter there are ten deaths for one of the former, as Rock river is a treacherous stream and so few people know how to swim.—John Drew will appear in "The Masked Ball" at the Myers grand in September.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

July 9, 1903.—John Myers has reconstructed the Myers hotel, which will hereafter be known as the "New Myers" due to recent renovations. An immense electric sign will be placed on the roof as soon as arrangements can be made. There will be no raise in ice prices here this summer, and local dealers do not fear a famine of it.

TEN YEARS AGO

July 9, 1913.—John C. Nichols, former mayor of Janesville, defeated Wallace W. Nash at the city primary yesterday and will now compete with Mayor James E. Fath for the recall election July 22. Vote for issuing bonds for the new Milwaukee street bridge carried easily, and work will start soon.

MAINTENANCE

It is estimated (it may as well admit that I'm the guy that makes the estimate) that 85.57 per centum of parents still feel somewhat indignant when little Sam or Dorothy comes home from school with an inscription from the doctor or nurse or teacher about "malnutrition" or a "poorly nourished" state. I hasten to assure wrathful parents that their report does not signify that Sam or Dorothy isn't getting the best of bread and butter in ample amounts. There is more malnutrition among the wealthy classes than there is among children of the poor. So nobody need resent the imputation that a child is not well nourished.

Dr. William B. B. Brady, who has established the first nutrition class for poorly nourished school children, noticed in his early study of malnutrition that the families had sufficient food for good nourishment, but the malnourished child perhaps omitted certain essential foods from his diet or had formed bad food habits. Later he found that even the poor portion of the more expensive foods and that it was frequently possible to teach the mother how to "care better" for her family with less money. It is in that, but I must stick to my poetry here.

Emerson ("Nutrition and Growth in Children," published by D. Appleton), published some of the factors formerly assumed to be responsible for malnutrition are really of no importance—such as bad heredity, congenital syphilis, latent tuberculosis, etc.—and the greater proportion of any large group of malnourished children react to the Wasserman test (for syphilis) or the Van-Pirquet test (for latent tuberculosis) as if they were entirely well nourished children.

Physical defects, particularly obstruction of the breathing tract (by enlargement of the tonsils or by enlarged adenoids or by neglected chronic rhinitis or other trouble in the nose) are of considerable importance, when such defects are overcome the child generally picks up in weight and strength.

Excessive fatigue is another important factor of malnutrition in school children; here we must once more attract attention to the habit of children by incompetent teachers who sit up nights planning or scheming to stretch out the homework to the extreme limit. A good teacher at a good school gets over the subject

Q.—What are the dimensions of a pound of gasoline in liquid and in vapor form?
A.—One pound of liquid gasoline equals 1.40 cubic feet. One pound of gasoline vapor equals 27 cubic feet at atmospheric pressure and temperature.
Q.—Does the wood for baseball bats have to be seasoned before it is used?
A.—Yes.
Q.—The wood should be seasoned because it shrinks during drying and all cracks or warping would be decided oval when dry. It is usually best to dry the wood either in the square or in the rough-turned condition. Seasoned wood is more than twice as strong as stiff or green wood, and the weight has decreased materially.

Q.—What color is best to wear in hot weather and what in cold weather?
A.—According to the Outline of Science, for a warm-blooded animal in very cold surroundings, the most economical dress is white for it loses least animal heat. In very hot surroundings white is also best, for it absorbs less of external heat than other colors do.

Q.—How long is a young married woman supposed to wear mourning for a father, brother or child?
A.—None.

Q.—A married woman wears, in mourning for her child, brother, sister, or parent, the same sort of dress as she wears in case of widowhood with the exception of the white bonnet and gloves. May women of excellent taste simply wear black clothes, having given up funeral crepe?

Q.—How many automobiles are in use in China and in Japan?
A.—According to the latest statistics available, in January 1922 there were 12,260 automobiles in Japan or one to every 4564 of the population. In February 1922 there were 81,600 automobiles in China—that is, one to each 37,068 population. In the United States there is an automobile to each ten inhabitants.

Greater Crops

CONDITIONS in the farming industry are the broad-gauged barometers of general business in the United States.

When crops are good prosperity is general.

It is obvious, therefore, that the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) can turn its facilities and talents to no more important task than that of assisting the farmer to secure a greater crop return per acre.

The experience of the past ten or fifteen years has demonstrated that farms where automotive equipment is used are operated on a lower cost level and with a higher crop return than is the case where animal power is used.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is doing its utmost to promote the use of motorized machinery on the farm. Throughout ten middle western states this Company maintains a system of distribution which insures the farmer a dependable supply of gasoline, kerosene, lubricants and other products of petroleum at all times.

In this territory the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) maintains 3,780 bulk stations, out of which some 7,000 trucks and tank wagons carry its products to the farmer's home or if necessary to the tractor in the field.

This is one of the services which only a big organization could perform and it is a service worth while.

To emphasize the far reaching benefits of motorizing farm equipment, it is only necessary to state that farm property values in the United States have increased from forty billions of dollars in 1910 to eighty-five billions in 1920—an advance of 107% for a ten-year period.

The service performed by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has been a factor of importance in making this increase possible.
